

Thesis Abstract

Actinide Elements as Oceanographic Tracers in the Pacific Ocean
(太平洋における極微量アクチノイド測定法開発とその応用)

Rosmarie EIGL

Department of Earth and Planetary Systems Science,
Graduate School of Science,
Hiroshima University

Contents of the thesis

Abstract

Chapter 1: Introduction

Chapter 2: Co-precipitation of uranium from seawater

Chapter 3: New target preparation method for ^{236}U detection with AMS

Chapter 4: Distribution of ^{236}U in the North Pacific Ocean

Chapter 5: ^{236}U in the Equatorial and South Pacific Ocean

Chapter 6: ^{237}Np and U isotopes in seawater

References

Attachment: Surface water samples close to the Marshall Islands

Acknowledgement

Main Articles

Additional Articles